

HEAVY RAINS STOP BATTLE

Big Armies Await the Lifting of the Fog Before Resuming Their Slaughter.

FURNISHES REST FOR SOLDIERS

Weather Gives Rank and File a Chance to Recuperate for the Contest That Is Sure To Come Soon.

London, Oct. 21.—In strongly entrenched positions on either side of the swollen Shalke river the main forces of the opposing armies await a cessation of the heavy rains. Thursday a dense, impenetrable fog dropped like a shroud over the battle field, blotting each army from the sight of the other. What transpired behind the curtain of mist can only be conjectured. It is not conceivable that either Oyama or Kourapatkin let the opportunity pass without changing the disposition of his forces, in preparation for a resumption of the great battle of the Shalke river.

Apart from minor skirmishes and the exploits of scouting parties on each side, the day passed for the most part without incident. Sporadic discharges of artillery in the early morning were the only echo of the terrific battle which practically came to an end on Tuesday.

It is believed by correspondents at the front that the heavy rains, impassable roads, and the exhaustion of the troops will prevent a resumption of active hostilities for some days.

Ready to Resume Struggle.
Unlike the situation after the battle of Lao Yang, the armies are now face to face, and, although not at present engaged, are in actual touch along the entire line. It is not probable that either will recede from the positions occupied. The struggle must therefore be resumed as soon as the weather permits.

An unconfirmed report from Mukden announces the repulse of a sudden attack early on Oct. 19 on an advanced Russian position southwest of Mukden. The report adds that the Japanese were driven off with the loss of one gun.

A dispatch to St. Petersburg from a Russian correspondent says: "The heavens have intervened to put a stop to bloodshed. Rain, impassable roads, and exhausted armies are factors sufficient in themselves to explain the cessation of hostilities, and these conditions are aggravated by a dense fog overspreading the whole of the theater of war. Behind this pall either side would be able to change the disposition of whole forces in absolute secrecy, but the obscurity renders absolutely dangerous any attempt at a forward movement. When the curtain of mist is lifted the fighting may be resumed under totally changed conditions."

Rumors in St. Petersburg.
The wild flight of rumors continues in St. Petersburg, the rout or capture of Japanese divisions or battalions and scores of guns alternating with alarmist stories of General Kuropatkin's retreat.

ENGLAND BARS GERMANY FROM USING THE HARBOR

Will Not Permit Them To Land Troops or Supplies for Their South African War at Walfish Bay.

[Special by Scripps-Mellon.]
Berlin, Oct. 21.—The British government has positively refused to grant the request of Germany to permit the latter to use Walfish Bay for the landing of troops and supplies for use in the war against the natives of German southwest Africa.

LOAN COMPANIES ARE HARD HIT
Nebraska Supreme Court Quits North-western Concern From State.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 21.—By a decision ousting the Northwestern company of Omaha from the state the Nebraska supreme court dealt a death blow to the operative loan companies doing business in the northwest. The concern, does business by receiving monthly payments and later makes loans to build homes. The jurisdiction over such concerns, the court declares, is vested in the state banking board. The lottery feature is also criticized.

Raisin Packers Control Prices.
San Francisco, Oct. 21.—It is reported that the California raisin packers have entered into a combination under the terms of which the grower will not be offered more than 2 cents for his new crop.

opatin's retreat on Mukden, all equally untrue. The war office declares that there have been no serious developments since the capture of Lone Tree hill last Sunday, and authorizes a denial of the report that a Russian battalion has been annihilated in trying to recross the Taitse river.

As to the stories of General Kuropatkin's retreat, it is sufficient to refer to the energetic scouting behind the Japanese lines to show that the Russian commander is determined to engage the enemy as soon as the weather permits.

Oyama Defines Situation.

Tokio, Oct. 21.—No official news of Thursday's developments have been received here. Press dispatches announce that the lull in the fighting is now complete, and that the armies are hidden from each other by impenetrable fog. No fighting of any importance is reported to have occurred since Oct. 18.

There is absolutely no confirmation of the rumor that Gen. Kuropatkin is dying of disease.

The following dispatch, bringing the developments up to the evening of Oct. 19, was received from Field Marshal Oyama's headquarters yesterday:

"Yesterday the center column of the right army attacked and dislodged the enemy's cavalry, holding Tunchi-afah, but a small body of the enemy's infantry has returned to that position. The enemy continues to hold Waiho mountain.

"On the morning of Oct. 19 two battalions of the enemy's infantry were visible near Kaokwanchia, lying to the right of the right army, and they appeared to have supports in the rear. The strength of the latter is under investigation.

Detect Advance of Russians.

"On the afternoon of Oct. 19 the right wing of the center column discovered two battalions and a battery of the enemy advancing in its front from Tunchi-afah to Titi mountain. They concealed themselves behind Titi mountain.

"One brigade of the enemy is located near Tunchi-afah. The enemy's guns north of Tunchi-afah occasionally shell our position. There is no change in front of the left column of the right army.

"There has been no change in front of the center army except that there are occasional exchanges of shells.

"It is quiet in front of the left army, though the enemy occasionally sends shells toward our positions. On the night of Oct. 18 the enemy attacked the front of the left column, but he was repulsed."

The refusal will seriously interfere with Germany's military plans in southwest Africa as Walfish Bay is the only good harbor for a thousand miles along the coast. It is reported German reverses in southwest Africa continue. The German station at Nontate has been captured by the Hotentots.

BAPTISTS TAKE UP THE CONGO
Memorialize Secretary Hay to Help Stop Atrocities in Africa.

Akron, O., Oct. 21.—As a result of an address before the convention of the Ohio Baptists by C. D. Antideel, the society adopted a resolution memorializing Secretary Hay to do all in his power to put an end to the horrible atrocities in the Congo State. Antideel described the atrocities as he saw them and gave political and other causes. He says slavery as it exists in the Congo State is worse than ever.

Illinois Central Wreck.
Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 21.—South-bound passenger train No. 3 on the Illinois Central railroad jumped the track near Grenada, Miss., wrecking the express and baggage cars and derailing the chair car and three sleepers. Three mail clerks were injured, none seriously.

Aeronaut Falls Sixty Feet.
San Angelo, Tex., Oct. 21.—M. H. Phillips, an aeronaut of Hudson, Mich., was fatally injured at the fair grounds. When about sixty feet high the balloon split into shreds and Phillips fell to the ground, striking several spectators, who were also injured.

LETTER OF PEACE CONFAB IS READY

Cabinet Had a Long Session This Morning—Decided Several Important Items.

[Special by Scripps-Mellon.]
Washington, Oct. 21.—The cabinet at a regular meeting today devoted almost all the time to formulation of a circular letter to the powers inviting them to participate in another peace conference at The Hague. The letters will be sent out within a few days to ambassadors and ministers abroad for their presentation to the respective foreign offices. The letter makes no reference to the Russo-Japanese war.

MORE ROBBERIES IN DANE COUNTY

Another Store Is Robbed by Clever Thieves Who Make Their Escape.

[Special to The Gazette.]
Madison, Wis., Oct. 21.—Thieves entered the general store of John Lochner in Madison, several miles west of Madison, last night, and stole $250 in cash. The sheriff of Dane county started out after the robbers but up to this time he found no clue.

SUBSTITUTES ARE TO PLAY IN GAME

Drake University Is To Play Wisconsin Tomorrow at Madison.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 21.—A bunch of substitutes will do the greater part of the playing for Wisconsin in the football game against Drake university of Des Moines, Iowa, here Saturday. The reason is not a large list of regulars on the hospital list, but the assurance that Coach Vest of Michigan or other Wolverine representatives will watch the game in contemplation of the contest at Madison a week hence, the first intercollegiate championship contest on the Wisconsin schedule.

Wisconsin, therefore, will play what Assistant Coach Curtis calls a "blind" game, in order not to give the guests from Ann Arbor any undesirable tips from the Wisconsin point of view.

The Iowa team scored 52 points on the plucky Oke college team a week ago and will doubtless bring a good contest with them to Madison. Coach Curtis says no attempt will be made to run up a big score, as it is desired that no injuries result by reason of reckless playing, so as to impair Wisconsin's chances in the Michigan game.

AMES JURY DID NOT REACH VERDICT

Another Trial Against the Ex-Mayor Will Begin on Monday Next.

[Special by Scripps-Mellon.]
Minneapolis, Oct. 21.—The jury in the third trial of ex-Mayor Ames, charged with bribery, extortion and maintenance of wholesale blackmail of disreputable women, today reported a disagreement. The case will be placed on trial again Monday.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 21.—The senior class of the engineering department of the University of Wisconsin leaves for St. Louis October 30 to spend a week in studying the machinery at the world's fair grounds and the city in proper. Professors C. I. King and Storm Bull and Messrs. G. C. Shand and Schudter will have charge of the party. Forty-two students will go.

MANY KILLED AND SEVERAL INJURED

The New York Central Road Had a Serious Smash Up Near Geneva Today.

[Special by Scripps-Mellon.]
Geneva, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Three members of train crews were killed and three injured as the result of the collision of two freight trains on the New York Central this morning. The dead are Charles Ruleoff, engineer; John Kickey; and George Rogers, fireman.

STATE NOTES

The district convention of the Women's Relief corps of southern Wisconsin at Kenosha was presided over by Mrs. Catherine Bleyer of Waukegan, Wis., Milwaukee.

The city council of Monroe defeated the street car franchise when it came up for passage the second time with changes made on account of organization of a corporation.

Mr. and Mrs. George End of Sheboygan have donated to their city for park purposes the tract of land situated on Los Angeles avenue, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets.

The breaking of a scintilla at St. James' church, Kenosha, resulted in August Krebs and Charles Ehrlich, two artists, falling thirty feet and sustaining injuries which may prove fatal.

While operating a picking machine at the Racine Woolen mill the right arm of Charles Haefner was caught and literally torn to pieces almost to the elbow. It is believed that death will result from the shock and loss of blood.

While digging a trench in the back yard at his home, Alphonse Bastey of Green Bay struck a crumbling wooden box, which, when broken open, disclosed a complete skeleton. It is supposed that the skeleton is that of an early settler.

A Racine electric street car on Thursday crashed into a buggy driven by David Rowland, a member of the board of public works, and Mr. Rowlands was thrown to the stone pavement, striking on his shoulder. His injuries are serious.

At the session of the American L. L. bureau association at La Crosse, R. G. Thwaites of Madison made a short speech touching upon the great value of historical and otherwise of the several exhibits of state library associations on the exposition grounds.

A stranger, supposed to be a Pole from Milwaukee, was struck and killed by a passenger train on the Milwaukee road near Franksville last night. He was walking on the double tracks and stepped out of the way of a freight train in front of the passenger train.

WOMEN ADMIT LABOR UNIONS

State Federation Lets Down Bars That Exclude Workers From Joining.

OPPOSITION TO THE RADICAL STEP

Springfield Club Threatens to Leave the Organization if the Action Is Insisted Upon—May Reconsider.

[Special by Scripps-Mellon.]

Danville, Ill., Oct. 21.—Battered by a violent storm of criticism, and at every step encountering tart rebukes, and parrying sarcastic thrusts with bitter rejoinder, the radicals in the State Federation of Women's Clubs Thursday routed the conservatives and broke down the bars that have excluded labor unions from the federation.

By a vote of 270 to 35 the federation adopted a constitutional amendment extending eligibility to membership to organizations whose chief purpose is "sociological." Labor unions will be classed under this head, and the fight was waged purely on trades union lines.

For the first time in the history of the federation trades unionism became a positive, immediate issue, and the debate which characterized the session as one of the stormiest in the federation's life had more-rancor in it than any participated in by the Illinois club women since their ranks were divided by the color line.

Clubs Threaten to Drop Out.

During the fight Mrs. James Walker, a delegate from the Springfield Woman's club, declared the organization she represented would withdraw from the federation should the doors be thrown open to the labor unions. Prominent conservatives from all sections of the state are predicting that the admission of labor unions will result in the disruption of the federation.

The radical element is making every effort to reconcile the conservatives to the new policy by denying that a great forward step has been suddenly taken, as a labor organization, the Chicago Teachers' federation, already is an affiliated body.

Do Not Understand Question.

The conservatives also are making the charge that, although the revision motion was repeated several times by President Bacon, many women voted for the change of policy when they meant to vote against it, as the question was put negatively. They are bitterly declaring the federation has fallen into the hands of women who intend to make it a party to strikes, to lend the use of its influence to walking delegates and politicians. They are threatening to renew the fight by getting one of their number who voted with the prevailing side to move a reconsideration.

Pledges for Union Woman.

Katie O'Connor made an impassioned plea for the admission of labor unions. "These working women are our sisters," she cried. "It is for us to extend the hand of fellowship to them. They need us; we need them. What have we to fear from labor unions? They are made up of earnest, hard-working women, with hearts and ideals as high as ours. They are our sisters."

"They give us our leisure," declared Miss Anna Nicholas. "They are doing our work for us that we may be down here. They are making it, in factories the clothes we used to put up at home. We are indebted to them for our leisure. We are human, and nothing human should be foreign to us."

Mrs. Walker of Springfield urged conservatism. She said her club had instructed her to announce it would withdraw if the labor unions were admitted.

Mrs. Alfred Bayless charged that the clause would let down the bars to political as well as to labor organizations. She sounded a warning note.

POLICE SEEK COMPANION OF MURDERED SETTLER

Minnesota Officials Are Searching for Partner of Phileas Fontaine...Remains Mutilated.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 21.—Investigation of the death of the man supposed to be Phileas Fontaine of Woonsocket, R. I., whose body was found a mile from Mentor, reveals a shocking murder. Sheriff Sullivan has sent out eight deputies and asked the police of the county to search for Joseph Guilmette.

Fontaine and Guilmette had been in the vicinity of Mentor for several days. Friday, Oct. 14, both men appeared at the Lapage farm. Fontaine carried considerable money; but the exact amount is not known. Friday night the two men stayed with the Lapage family. They started hunting Saturday morning. They were seen in Mentor Sunday. Sunday night they spent at a farm house near town and the next day again went hunting. Monday afternoon they were seen passing along the railroad tracks by several members of the Mareaux family.

Hear Two Shots.
A few minutes after they had passed the Mareaux family heard a shot, then ten minutes later a second shot.

Fontaine's body was found beside the railroad track. A bullet had entered the head behind the ear. The body had been hauled by the heels, face downward, over the railroad ties. After being rolled down an embankment and dragged into the brush the remains were almost dismembered. After the body had been dragged to the brush another shot had been fired into the face. The gun was held close that the gunwads were buried an inch deep.

Guilmette was last seen at Fertile, Minn., and it is from that point he is being traced.

Went West Together.
Woonsocket, R. I., Oct. 21.—Phileas Fontaine, the victim of murder in Minnesota, was about 32 years of age and unmarried. He went west last summer with Joseph Guilmette under a contract to gather spruce gum for Desrochers Brothers, druggists, of Woonsocket, and was expected to return in a short time. Fontaine's family moved away soon after he went west.

Guilmette has a wife and three children living in this city. Mrs. Guilmette says her husband recently wrote that the project which took him and Fontaine west had not prospered, as the spruce forests had been cut down. Both had secured other employment. A letter received later said that Guilmette was coming east. A telegram received by the local police said that a letter from "Anita Trinkle" had been found in the murdered man's pocket. This was the maiden name of Mrs. Guilmette.

ADDS MYSTERY TO CASE.

Man Supposed to Have Been Murdered Is Located at Grand Forks.
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 21.—The Mentor murder mystery is growing more mysterious. The man supposed to have been murdered, Phileas Fontaine, was located at Grand Forks, Minn., and well, and the authorities immediately brought him to this city to view the remains which were supposed to have been his own. Fontaine, who was a former chum of Joseph Guilmette, the man believed to have committed the murder, identified the remains positively as those of Joseph Mongeaon, a Frenchman, whose home is at Saint Pie, Que.

Mongeaon was seen at East Grand Forks with Guilmette by Fontaine last Saturday. On Monday the pair got off the train at Mentor apparently for the purpose of hunting, and late that afternoon the tragedy occurred.

Mongeaon beyond doubt is the man who was killed. On his person was found a picture of a boy apparently 14 years old, presumably his son.

BITTER FIGHTING STILL CONTINUES

ADMINISTRATION AND ANTI-ADMINISTRATION LOCK HORNS.

TRICKS IN ALL TRADES

Every Sort of a Deal Being Made Known to Politicians This Year.

(B. Staff Correspondent.) Milwaukee, Oct. 21.—During the past few days the situation in Wisconsin has changed. The leaders of the governor's faction are not so confident as they were. They see obstacles ahead. Even by making trades with democrats in such counties as Rock and Babcock's third district, they are afraid they cannot hold a small part of the democratic votes that they have claimed. The democrats are organizing. The slogan throughout the whole state is "Organize! Organize! Organize!" Almost every county and city and even some villages have now their democratic clubs. This was not possible eight, six, or even two years ago, when the democratic party was divided by free silver, but now a united party is becoming acquainted with each other, learning to trust each other and the result will be startling. Strong republican counties are classed as doubtful and democratic county chairmen are even claiming such counties as Rock.

Rushing Work
The administration men claim that Babcock has made a deal with the democratic state committee to throw votes for Rock in his district in exchange for democratic votes for him. The Babcock campaign managers claim that La Follette is openly promising the democratic nominee for congress the support of his followers in exchange for votes for himself. Cooper has openly declared himself for the governor and denounced the men who nominated him. He is to tour Rock county, in fact the whole of the first congressional district under the auspices of the La Follette-Roosevelt clubs. County chairmen, postmasters and men who supported him in his nomination for years past are ruthlessly put aside for the idol of the hour. There will be no concerted cut on him but it is safe to say that the plurality will be elected by a vote of 15,000 or even five. He will be taught a lesson if such men can be taught.

Fight Republicans
In all the counties throughout the state where conservative republicanism rules the administration leaders are waging a bitter warfare. They do not hesitate to openly boast that they hope republican nominees will be cut. They are out with the axe and scalping knife early and late. Their bitter attack upon Senator Whitehead is an example of this manner of warfare. Game wardens drawing pay from the state, oil inspectors, members of the state board of agriculture, and the state veterinarian, are leading this attack. Men who have been leading the republican party for years and do not like to give up their "gratuities" are openly denouncing the men who opposed the pet schemes of their mentor. It is not a fight between republicans and democrats this year but between rule and ruin and an honest government. It will be the silent vote that counts and this silent vote is rapidly being educated how to vote by both sides of the fight.

A National Insult
Milwaukee county halfbreeds have turned the picture of Senator Charles W. Fairbanks vice presidential candidate on the republican ticket, to the wall. The large lithograph window hangers containing the picture of republican candidates which the republican county committee will send around Milwaukee county, have been printed and they are without the portrait of Fairbanks.

In this position usually occupied by the vice presidential candidate's portrait rests a portrait of Gov. La Follette and the picture of the Wisconsin gubernatorial candidate divides the honors with the republican presidential nominee at the head of the poster.

So bitterly do the La Follette people feel over the failure of Senator Fairbanks to mention the governor's name in his speeches that some people have been led to express a wonder if the republican ticket should be successful in this state, whether the La Follette electors would support Mr. Fairbanks for vice president.

MANY MEDALS FOR ROCK COUNTY MEN

Award of Prizes by Agricultural Department of Exposition—Ten Gold Medals.

Awards of prizes by the jury of the department of agriculture at the St. Louis exposition show that sixty per cent of the Wisconsin exhibitors were awarded prizes, while ten per cent of the winners of gold medals in this state, 12.83 per cent of the winners of silver medals, and 13.36 per cent of the winners of bronze medals were from Rock county. Out of the forty-eight Wisconsin exhibitors who carried off prize gold medals, five were Rock county men. Of the fifty winning silver medals, six were from this county and of the fifty-five bronze medals awarded to Wisconsin exhibitors, eight were awarded to men in the county.

Gold Medals
Those to win gold medals are: James R. Lamb, Janesville, timothy; Will Pember, Janesville, clover; Franz Hoffman, Clinton, millet; wheat, buckwheat, corn; L. L. Old Seed company, Clinton, potatoes, seeds, etc.; and M. A. Patchen, Clinton, barley.

Silver Medals
The silver medal awards are as follows: Walter Helms, Janesville, seed; Henry Sweeney, Janesville, clover; Fred Bird, Clinton, buckwheat; C. E. Johnson, Union, wheat; John Peterson, Clinton, buckwheat; James O. Sorenson, Clinton, buckwheat.

Bronze Medals
The following are bronze medal winners: August W. Blank, Janesville, peas; Arthur M. Church, Janesville, peas; Judson E. Randall, Janesville, popcorn; H. L. Austin, Janesville, corn; H. Chessman, Clinton, barley; C. J. Donahedy, Clinton, Speltz and summer; and Frank Flood, Clinton, barley.

Grand Prizes
Two grand prizes were also awarded to the exhibitors of the state, as follows: Wisconsin State commission, collection of grains, grasses and legumes; Milwaukee, Currie, Bros. company, collective exhibit of high grade garden and farm seeds.

Clinton Won Most
In all there were ten gold, six silver, and eight bronze medals won in the county, of which Clinton received seven gold, four going to Franz Hoffman; three silver medals for buckwheat and four bronze medals, two for barley and one for speltz and another for summer.

MANY ENJOYED A PLEASANT TIME

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Parker Entertained at Dinner Last Evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Parker opened their pleasant home on Court street last evening to a company of friends and neighbors, and the hours, from 6:30 to midnight were filled with social enjoyment. A bountiful supper was served at an early hour, and games and music entertained the company with old-fashioned sociability. Mr. and Mrs. Parker are to be congratulated for breaking into the six o'clock afternoon tea and giving the boys and girls an opportunity to enjoy an evening together. What Janesville society needs is less clubs and more social gatherings like the one of last night. The Parkers are royal entertainers.

JANESVILLE RUNNERS DID NOT COMPETE IN FRESHMEN MEET

Myers Was Not in Training Because Of a Case of Blood-Poisoning From Scratch.

Myers and Fisher, the two Janesville boys attending the university and who were entered in the races of the Freshman-Sophomore meet which was held last evening at Madison did not compete. Some way while in training a week ago Myers received a small scratch which in a few days time resulted in a case of blood-poisoning so that he was unable to continue his training and was out of condition for the meet. Had the races come a week later Myers would have been able to contest and there is no doubt but that he would have made a good showing. In practicing though, he has been out of training during the summer and has done little this fall, he showed up better than a large number of the entrants. Fisher who was entered in the two mile, did not run forty years ago.

MADISON FIREMEN VISITS AT LOCAL ENGINE HOUSES

John Ingleburger, city electrician of Madison, was a visitor at the fire stations yesterday, being the guest of the members of the fire-department. He inspected the fire alarm system and the apparatus for protection and was given a demonstration of the use of the aerial ladder under the direction of Chief Klein. In Madison there is no ladder of that kind in the fire-department, the Bangor ladder which is seldom used in this city, being used there for the greater part of the time.

DOCTORS ADMIT THEIR MISTAKE

Case of Paul Parkhurst vs. Doctors Nuzum, Sutherland and Richards Now on Trial.

Finally the jury has been chosen and the Green county circuit court has convened and the case of Paul Parkhurst vs. Drs. Nuzum, Richards and Sutherland of Broadhead has been called. The opening argument has been made by Attorney Pierce of this city acting for Lawyers J. L. Fisher and William Smith who have the case for the plaintiff. The argument detailed the history of the boy who is eight years old and explained how the accident occurred. E. P. Vilas of Milwaukee, representing the defendants, outlined the defense. He admitted that a mistake had been made but claimed that the foot was defective in the first place; that the boy was paralytic and sickly; that the other foot was helped and that the accident resulted in no damage to the boy.

The complaint sets up that the plaintiff was operated upon by the three defending doctors a year ago, the boy being afflicted with deformity of the right leg; that the defendants made the mistake of operating on the left leg and were in ignorance of the fact until informed by the patient and then operated upon the right leg with the result that it is now worse than it was before. It also claimed that the heel of the left foot had become enlarged and extended, and the ankle has been rendered stiff; and the toes by reason of the acts of the defendants, have become frozen under, and will necessarily have to be amputated. That there has since been a running sore on the ankle and that the ankle foot and leg are now and always will be deformed and difficult to use.

Among the expert witnesses for the plaintiff is Dr. James Gibson of this city who was also a witness in the case of Knudson vs. Nuzum, which has been appealed to the circuit court by the plaintiff.

NEW POOL GAME FROM NEW YORK

"High, Low, Jack and the Game" Has Been Imported From The Metropolis.

Though Americans were not the first pool players, to them belongs the credit of a new form of the game which is pronounced by players to be a great deal more interesting and exciting than any form heretofore introduced. The game comes from New York city where it is now popular.

The ordinary game is the "rotation" game, where the balls are pocketed in numerical order. The new game is known as "high, low, Jack and the game." In it three balls, the one, nine and fifteen are placed in the center of the rack. One is high, fifteen is low, nine is Jack and the largest number of the remaining balls constitutes game. It offers many opportunities for skill and combinations and has made a hit with the pool players. The break is a matter of science to keep the three balls masked from the other players in case none is pocketed on the first shot.

The back is half fitted, with two broad stitched box pleats running from the shoulder seam to the hem, and a similar pair appear on the fronts. These latter are double breasted, loose, provided with smart patch pockets, and held into the figure with a belt. The sleeve has a box pleat down the center, this released to form a shallow wrist puff. Both collar and cuff are of shiny leather, each with a velvet edge.

CLOSE GAME IS NOW EXPECTED

Beloit and Janesville High Schools Are Considered Evenly Matched—Beloit Confident of Victory.

Tomorrow at the athletic park will be played the first game of the season that will count in the Wisconsin championship run for the high school. It is the first high school game which has been played in the city this year. Beloit and Janesville, each have hopes of carrying off the honor of the field and the supporters of the line city team are ready to place money on the result even as to the size of the score. Janesville is not so confident of winning but has a dogged determination to do their best to keep up the record of the former teams from here. Thus far Beloit has had a victorious season, defeating Beloit Academy by a score of 12 to 0; Freeport high by a score of 32 to 0; and Evansville high by a score of 15 to 5. Janesville has not such a bright record to look back upon, having won one and lost three games. Whitewater Normal repeated the trick winning by scores of 16 to 6 and 5 to 0; Wayland ripped up the locals to the tune of 34 to 0. But one thing which might be significant for a victory for the sky blue is that Janesville defeated Beloit Academy by a margin of 34 and Beloit high by only 12. No matter what the result will be the game will be hotly contested so that they might continue in the fight for state championship. The teams will line up as follows:

Position	Janesville	Beloit
Fullback	Feely	McMahon
Quarterback	Devins	Devins
Halfback	Gooden	Gooden
Sheldon	Carle	Carle
End	Ryan	Ryan
Guard	Galbraith	Galbraith
Line	Sennett	Sennett
Line	Caldow	Caldow
Line	Wright	Wright

...LINK AND PIN... News for the Railroad Men.

An Erie official has now made the following statement: "The plan for making Erie a low grade freight road has now reached definite shape."

"A new survey which has been in progress for some time develops a route by which Erie, at the cost of less than $15,000,000, can make a freight road from Chicago to Toledo, with a ruling grade eastbound of 2-10 per cent, and 3-10 per cent westbound, except upon the New York division. There the ruling grade westbound will be 6-10 per cent."

"The plan is to produce a single track freight road with these gradients, with second and third tracks much of the way where the present line is followed. On the New York division across New Jersey, there would be four tracks in all."

"The plans also provides for revision of the Hoboken terminal at a cost of about $10,000,000. This terminal has always been the limiting factor in Erie operations."

"At the same time plans are being formulated for the electrification of the suburban service through-out New Jersey. Some fifty-one miles in all will be electrified."

"The whole expense contemplated for the entire scheme of development is less than $30,000,000. It comes within the financial provisions already made."

President M. E. Ingalls of the Big Four railroad has sent to president Stone of Purdue university a check for $10,000 as the contribution of the railroad toward the Purdue memorial gymnastic fund.

While tightening a bolt on an engine at the St. Paul roundhouse yesterday, Edwin Mead fell from the locomotive to the ground injuring his side and knocking himself unconscious for several minutes. He was straining the bolt, putting all his strength and weight in the work, when the wrench broke, allowing him to fall. He laid out but for about a half hour and is working today, though feeling rather shaken up and walking with a limp.

BICYCLE TO STAY; IS VERY USEFUL

Many Workmen Depend Upon This Mode of Going to and From Their Work.

"The bicycle is a back number," say those who used to ride for pleasure and have given it up. From their point of view they speak the truth, too, as hundreds of wheels in dingy cellars or woodsheds in the city of Janesville will testify. There you will find them; if you chance to look in all conditions and stages of repair, with a coating of rust or dirt over them that would have been thought a disgrace when the wheels were new. Even when these wheels are picked up by the police they are not asked for for weeks sometimes, whereas in the old days the theft of a wheel was only second as a crime to that of stealing a horse in the minds of the enthusiasts.

But in spite of the apparent disfavor into which the rubber tired steed has fallen, particularly among those who can afford automobiles, it is not quite fair to say that the bicycle is entirely a thing of the past. A glance about the factories of the city give the man who still clings to the wheel evidence enough to support his claim that it still has its place in the heart of the great public. Go with him to the Janesville Machine company shops, and the scores—even hundreds—of wheels that are left standing in almost every available spot about the buildings will show that for business, if not for pleasure, the wheel is still a favorite. Go with him to the repair shops, and he will point out to you the men busily engaged all day long in fixing punctures, putting on new tires, supplying a missing art here or a broken piece there. Rise with him in the early morning, stand with him just south of town, on the After road on South main street, near the brewery, or at the upper bridge itself and he will ask you how you can charge the bicycle with having outlived its usefulness, when hundreds of men are easily and quickly wheeling themselves to their daily tasks. Go with him again at the close of the day, and have the argument repeated, as these men hasten to reach their homes, where a good hot supper awaits them.

Do these things and you will have proof enough that from being a passing fad the wheel has come to be a settled commercial asset of a great many of the working men and women.

WHO IS WHO?

Progressiveness is the spirit of the hour. The Janesville Daily Gazette with a view of presenting novel features of interest to its readers and benefit to its advertisers, presents for the first time in this city the novel guessing contest "Who is Who?" Below, described in numbered paragraphs will be found brief descriptions of a large number of the best and successful business houses of the city. Five cash prizes await those readers of The Gazette who send in the first correct solutions. Fill out your list with the name of the firm that you believe is intended by the paragraph opposite the number given to each description. If none are correct, the five first lists containing the largest correct number of answers will receive the prize. If in doubt about any one, call upon them or telephone and ask them if they are in The Gazette. They will be glad to tell you. All lists must be addressed to "Who is Who," Gazette office, and be in by Monday, October 24th. The prize awards and names of business houses will be published in The Gazette.

CLOTHCRAFT RAINCOATS AND OVERCOATS

If the purpose of a raincoat were simply to shield the wearer from rain there wouldn't be any reason for your wearing a Clothcraft Raincoat in preference to another.

But a rain proof garment must have style, fit and distinction in order to meet the requirements of modern civilization.

Clothcraft Raincoats embody every attribute of the tailor's art.

Note the style illustrated to the left, the "Raincoat."

It fits to perfection—the shoulders are broad, the collar clings closely to the neck, the back hangs gracefully, the entire garment bears the earmarks of the work of tailors who "know how."

That's the reason you should wear a Clothcraft Raincoat, because it's the acme of perfection in style and fit, and keeps you as dry as toast. The coat to the right is the "double-breasted" "Strand," made of Fancy Cheviot and Cassimere overcoating. It is an aristocrat in every sense of the word.

We carry a full line at $12 to $25. See them to-day.

AMONG THE WORLD'S WORKERS

News Notes From Various Sources of Great Interest to the Workingman.

Union coal miners in Lancashire, England, have protested against any further reduction in wages. Many of the men are only earning $1 a day, and working but four days per week.

Instructions have been sent to the various Pennsylvania Railroad department heads by chief of motive power Ely to employ mechanical means instead of manual labor whenever possible.

A novel feature promised for this year's labor day parades in some Texas cities will be the participation of the Farmer's Union which has been chartered by the American Federation of Labor.

Austrian workmen are progressive. Until recently their unions were only local organizations but now they are fast forming national organizations with branches in the various parts of the Austrian empire.

In Bradstreet's report of labor conditions of the United States it is stated that there were 235,000 persons on strike or blocked out in the United States on June 1st last, while on the same date in 1903 the number was 585,000.

A number of London cabmen are being trained as chauffeurs. They will Worth Considering.

To Whom It May Concern: I desire to say that, after a great deal of experience in the hands of Dentists, I am convinced that Dr. Richards of Janesville is the only man I ever met who actually was doing Painless Dentistry. I have spent much time recently in his chair and am willing to state that he did Painlessly for me some extensive dental work which, without his painless method, I would have been unable to bear.

CONGRESSMAN COOPER.

The Milwaukee Sentinel contains the following item on Congressman Cooper. First district republicans charge that Congressman Cooper has, by his alliance with Governor La Follette, repudiated the pledges he made at the convention which nominated him at Monroe on May 20. Some even go so far as to say that if he had not pledged himself to remain neutral, that he would not have been nominated. Now, since he has declared himself an out-and-out supporter of La Follette, there are threats heard of scratching him at the coming election.

These republicans say that since he has violated his pledge, the republicans who then secured his nomination are now absolved from their allegiance to him. The convention which nominated him was in the absolute control of the Quakers supporters, and the resolutions adopted declared for the re-election of Senator Quarles, and enthusiastically endorsed both Senators Spooner and Quarles.

In the speech which Cooper made at the convention, he said, referring to the factional fight, that he would take no sides. His duty, he said, was to aid in the election of a republican president and a member of congress from this district, and though he had been importuned by members of both factions to line up, he did not feel called upon to do so. He closed his speech with this quotation: "He serves his party most who serves his country best."

While it is true that the first district congressman has been identified with La Follettism for the past four years, and he is now openly supporting the governor, it is also true that he is a republican regularly nominated in a republican convention, and therefore entitled to the republican support of the district.

The honorable place to oppose a candidate is in convention, and not at the polls. Aside from the principle involved, is the fact that the next house of congress is in danger, and the first district cannot afford to contribute to this danger.

Senator Quarles and his home county as well as the republicans of Racine, have occasion to feel keenly the indifference of their congressman, and the republicans of Rock have no occasion to be enthusiastic, but he is in the field, the regular nominee of the party and as such must be supported.

Mr. Cooper, like most of the Wisconsin delegation, has occupied a pedestal of congressional dignity. He has maintained that the office of congressman is a national office, and as such is removed from state entanglements. Rather a questionable position, but when taken, it should have been maintained to the hilt. The republicans of the state have been loyal to him for many years, and in spite of disappointment they will return him this year.

THE STATE HUMILIATED.

The sorry spectacle of Senator Spooner being retired from active work in the midst of a presidential campaign is a humiliation to the state which he has so long and faithfully represented.

There is an old saying in holy writ, that "a prophet is not without honor, save in his own country," and its truthfulness is verified in the case of the senator. The recognized leader in the upper house of congress, the close adviser of three presidents, a man whose name is familiar, and whose statesmanship is recognized throughout the land, he is placed in a position today where he can neither speak for himself or his party in his own state. He cannot speak for himself because of his loyalty, but his friends may speak for him, and the insult offered is so keenly felt by republicans of the state that nothing but loyalty to the principles of the party will keep them silent.

That the situation is thoroughly understood is not a debatable question. When the factional fight in Wisconsin reached a climax at Madison last May, and two state tickets were placed in the field, the conservative element, with which Senator Spooner was allied, nominated the same presidential electors that had already been nominated by the opposing faction.

This action secured the state to the National administration, beyond the shadow of doubt. In the bitter local contest which has since followed, the only request made of the National committee, was to keep hands off and if this had been done the state was as safe as Pennsylvania, Iowa, or any other republican state.

But the National committee was wiser than Senator Spooner and his republican allies throughout the state; and so they invited and encouraged conditions which now exist. There was no more occasion to send National speakers to Wisconsin this fall than there was to send them to Hawaii or Porto Rico. They could not come into the state without recognizing factions, but to send them here instructed to support a state ticket which the National convention refused to recognize, a ticket composed of men who are doing all in their power to defeat republican nominees in the state, is the greatest political blunder of the campaign. The state will be republican on National issues in spite of this insult, which is keenly felt, because the republicans of the state are republicans, but the policy adopted by the National committee, and the insult offered to Senator Spooner and the party as well is recognized.

SENATOR WHITEHEAD'S CAMPAIGN.

Senator Whitehead is conducting a campaign in Rock County by visiting every town and village. Thus far he has been given a most respectful hearing. At Center last Wednesday night one of the Governor's game wardens, and two or three of his friends attempted to embarrass the speaker by a fusillade of questions, but the Senator was too many for them and they were glad to retire from the field.

The supporters of Governor La Follette can render no better service to Senator Whitehead than to break up one of his meetings, some night and thus give the people of the county an object lesson. These men are opposing him because he is a full-fledged man, possessing both the courage and ability to defend himself and the course he has pursued. He was the recognized leader in the Senate, conservative in thought and action, but immovable. These are qualities which the people admire, and they will return him as their representative for another four years. Every vote that he recorded was an intelligent vote, and he is today as well prepared to defend it as he was this day it was cast.

The people of the county are being enlightened by the personal campaign which he is conducting and many of them are doing their own thinking.

The effort which the governor and his allies are making to defeat him, will be a futile effort. Every spasm of hatred and abuse, but adds to the Senator's popularity, and whether the Governor succeeds in holding his job or not, there is no question about Senator Whitehead's election.

The Milwaukee Journal is undoubtedly the wisest paper in the state, its forecast of political events goes hand in hand with its consoling, self-congratulation, "I told you so." If anybody is elected governor this fall, it won't be the fault of the Journal.

The republicans of Rock county will not vote for La Follette. Why should they? He is doing all that he can to defeat Senator Whitehead and other republican nominees. If that is republicanism what is the name of the brand?

Congressman Cooper will speak at the opera house some night next week and will also make a tour of the county. If he hopes to make any votes for the Governor he will be disappointed.

The National ticket will be saved in Wisconsin by the conservative element of the party, and in spite of interference by the National committee.

Candidate Grotphorst of Baraboo, is a La Follette democrat, and president of the Governor's Board of Control. He expects to defeat congressman Babcock, but will be disappointed.

The democrats are getting back into line and from the present outlook the Governor will do well if he secures ten per cent of the vote of that party.

Mr. Cooper comes to Rock county under the auspices of the La Follette managers. His old time friends will be disappointed.

General Nelson A. Miles declares that God is on the side of Judge Parker and the democratic ticket, that is news to a good many people.

Wall street may vote for Parker, but the state of New York will vote for Roosevelt.

Clark-Boynton, Wednesday, Oct. 19, at 8 p. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark in Harmony, Mr. Edgar Ray Boynton and Miss Agnes May Clark took the vows which united them as husband and wife.

About fifty friends and relatives witnessed the ceremony which was performed by Rev. S. G. Huey. The wedding march was played by Mrs. W. S. Haight, sister of the bride. The bride and groom were unattended. The groom was dressed in the conventional black and the bride in white chiffon. The house was artistically decorated with cut flowers and the dining room with smiles and cut flowers. Music was furnished for the occasion by Miss Sarah Weir of Whitewater Normal and Miss May McKenzie of Waukesha. An elegant three course dinner was served. Among the numerous and valuable presents received was an elegant secretary, the gift of the Sabbath school class of the bride. The groom is an enterprising young farmer of Bradford and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Boynton. The bride is one of Rock Prairie's successful school teachers and is the possessor of many winning qualities, and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark of Harmony. They will go to housekeeping on a farm near Avalon about November 1.

VILAS GIVEN A WARM RECEPTION

GIFTED STATESMAN ADDRESSED A LARGE AUDIENCE.

SCORED PRIMARY ELECTION

Law Now, Before People for Suffrage—Congressional Candidate Stew. Called Cooper a Coward.

Democracy was out in force to hear the Hon. William F. Vilas last evening and in the large, representative audience were voters of every known faith. Seated about the speaker were: Mayor Hutchinson, George M. McKee, O. E. Oestreich, Peter J. Moat, George C. Sutherland, J. E. Baker, I. F. Connors, Horace McElroy, Martin Duna, J. B. Whiting, Frank Morris, E. H. Ryan, A. M. Valentine, Wm. Dougherty, Janesville; Hon. Andrew Jensen, Edgerton; Calvin Stewart, Kenosha, and Hon. M. Regan and Paul Kingston of Madison.

Dr. Whiting's Welcome
Dr. B. Whiting, in introducing the speaker said: "Citizens—I beg you to believe that I have a profound appreciation of the honor paid me by being appointed to preside at this meeting. We are confronted by a strange, unusual condition of the body politic. We are told by those who must know of the danger we're in. If one half of the things they say are true, then indeed have earnest men a duty to perform. It is a long time since I have had the pleasure of looking into faces as eager and earnest as these before me. Why? Because you know we have with us a distinguished citizen, one of the prominent men of the nation whose political creed is based on the best judgment of the men who founded the republic—a man who has made a study of the science of government during his life and whose counsel even the ablest statesmen find profit. While such men belong to the nation, it is our special pride that this one belongs also to Wisconsin. The democratic party has never had such a leader. Where he pointed we have known that it was safe to follow. Gentlemen: It is one of the pleasures of my later life that I am permitted to introduce this distinguished orator, patriot, and beloved friend. It gives me pleasure to mention his name—the very name you will pardon me—sounds like the cadences of one of Campbell's poems."

Suffering From a Cold
Mr. Vilas responded to this graceful tribute by saying that while he rejoiced that he could possess the kind partiality of feeling which animated the distinguished chairman, he must decline to accept what had been said beyond his merits and attainments. He regretted that he must address his hearers in a condition of voice which would make it necessary for him to be conversational rather than oratorical—though perhaps just as good results would be obtained without the embellishments. "Our state is in the throes of a singular factional controversy, one of the part of our great adversary. Quarrels and strife and mutual recrimination attend a discussion, which ought to be simple, of great issues. In fact, when we hear them, we are hardly aware that we have a great country and great issues. I come to you purely as a democrat because I believe the safety and happiness of the people must rest on the acceptance of our faithful obedience to these teachings. As a democrat I desire to call your attention to some national questions to be determined in the election. Because they are of vastly superior importance to any of the state issues before us."

Argument on Tariff
He then launched into a discussion of the protective tariff, arguing that it taxed the many consumers for the benefit of the few manufacturers and had built up monopoly. From 1850 to 1860, he said, exports, the merchant marine and the valuations of farms increased in greater proportion than they had in the whole 40 years following. The tariff had been a survival of the old idea of the divine right of kings—of the necessity of sustaining a rich class that law and order might be preserved. Those benefiting from the tariff which shut out foreign imports and kept prices at an abnormal level, were now joined in one great confederacy. When he was in the post-office department he discovered that in addition to paying full rates to the railroads for the transportation of mails, the government was also paying enormous sums amounting to $20 per mile per year for the rental of ice malle cars. If congress would put the latter entirely in his hands he offered with his own money to buy and operate all the postal cars in service. A sum approximating $25,000,000 a year could have been saved, but when he made an effort to break into this confederacy of rapine he found the beneficiaries rallying from every quarter. Congress would not grant him the authority to proceed. The expenses of the government, he said, had been increased from $4.22 per head for every inhabitant in 1850 to $7.14 in 1904.

Scored Primary Election
"Well, we are in a tremendous excitement over local issues—talking about primary election. You think the world revolved about primary election. And while your eyes are fixed on this trivial, inconsequential subject, your pockets are being picked by the tariff. What is this primary? It simply provides that instead of gathering in our own caucuses, the democrats in their and the republicans in theirs, we've got to go somewhere and vote by a ballot as large as a bed-blanket. To begin with, no man can be a candidate for election until he has first obtained a previous nomination by nomination papers signed by certain people—one per cent of the vote of his party. Well, how he is going to get it? He or somebody else must pass around the paper and, somebody must swear that each person who signs it is a qualified voter and so signed with a full knowledge of the contents of the paper. To get merely a chance for the nomination for state office, he must go through six counties. There is poor prospect for the poor man. Who is going to pay the expense of this canvass simply for the chance of being placed on a ballot for nomination? And when he is nominated he still has before him the contest for election.

Minorities Must Be Protected
"Who's going to do that? Where there is a minority? It is a measure for the suppression of minorities. Yet minorities are often right. The very essence of our government depends on their protection. It closes the doors of self-respect and suppresses the best class of men who under our present system run for office only after their loyalty has been appealed to. If the thing were good it would be a nuisance. In Dane county a republican would have to get 282 names in ten precincts for the chance of being elected for the nomination. You have heard that this law would favor non-partisans. It is going to give every man a fair chance. How many names for you got to get for a chance for nomination for state office? If you are a republican, you must get 2,658; a democrat, 11,934; a prohibitionist, 900 in six counties. The non-partisan, God bless him, must have 8,362. Who is going to get on the ticket if the case is hopeless? Now we have conventions to hold the party together even if it is weak. We now have that system which belongs to free men. We assemble and talk it over and time and time again we solicit good men to stand for office. This subverts it all. Any man to get into office must do the whole work himself. The present system is educational. It inculcates the whole public in the preliminaries. Notwithstanding all this, the people will get together and discuss men and measures as they have for centuries. I will say for the democrats that if that law is passed they will get together and hold a convention anyway."

Cooper Arraigned
In introducing Calvin S. Stewart of Kenosha, democratic candidate for congress, he said that though this district had been strongly republican for years, if anything was calculated to destroy the republic, it was the action of Cooper, who was quiet and submissive enough before his convention, but when the court handed down a decision, not that either faction was right about the contention, but that a small committee had the right to decide, had accepted the result in a most astonishing and extraordinary "submission." Stewart branded Cooper as a political coward who had betrayed the convention that nominated him, scored the Republic man for his stand on the interstate commerce commission measure and his advocacy of legislation imposing a tax on the Philippine islands for railway construction without the consent of the governed. If any one of his hearers, he said, admitted La Follette because he was fearless and believed he was trying to prevent the railroads from robbing people, he could not consistently vote for Cooper. In an interview Vilas refused to make any predictions as to this state but said democrats were working together as he had never seen them before in Wisconsin.

CANTILLON MAY BE MAGNATE YET

Former Janesville Resident May Be One of the Purchasers of Philadelphia Franchise.

Newspapers throughout the country are making considerable capital of the actions of Joe Cantillon, a former Janesville resident, and manager of the Milwaukee baseball team last season. A dispatch from Des Moines announces Cantillon has purchased the Des Moines club franchise in the western league and that this team will be taken into the American association to displace some weaker team. Jack Tanner in this morning's Inter Ocean has the following to say of Cantillon and his moves:

"If the deal is made the Phillies of the Philadelphia National league baseball club decide to accept a cash offer for the franchise, the lease on the club's plant, and other assets, including contracts and the reserve lists of the players, the famous Quaker city club will change owners within a week."

"If the deal is made the Phillies will be owned and operated by a syndicate of western ball men, who intend to break into fast company by the most direct route."

"A syndicate consisting of Messrs. James F. and Thomas Burns of Colorado Springs, the present owners of the Western league team there; Alderman Charles Haveron, owner of the Milwaukee American association club; and Joe Cantillon, manager of the last named club, have formed a combination to purchase the Philadelphia club. There are possibly three or four other western men interested in this syndicate."

"The attempt to gain control of the Philadelphia club is being worked under cover. Burns and Haveron started for the east yesterday afternoon in response to hurry calls from their Philadelphia representatives. Cantillon starts for the east today. Ostensibly these three men are going east to attend the annual meeting of the National Association of Minor Leagues, which is to convene at the Victoria hotel in New York on Monday and at which there is absolutely no business of importance."

Haveron arrived from Milwaukee yesterday morning and promptly hunted up Joe Cantillon. Tom Burns of Colorado Springs was already in town, and about 1 o'clock in the afternoon the two met at the Grand Pacific hotel for a long conference. During this conference Mr. Haveron received a half dozen telegrams and Mr. Burns spent a few dollars in long distance telephone tolls.

"If this western syndicate does succeed in landing the Philadelphia club, it will be the money of the Burns brothers and the practical experience of Cantillon, one of the best managers in the country, that will induce the National league to sanction the transfer of the club to the Philadelphia hands. The present owners of the club, a bunch of millionaires headed by Jimmy Potter, positively refuse to invest any money in the club, and the lease was forced to carry the team and meet all expenses during the last two weeks of the playing season."

SEVEN TICKETS ON THE BALLOT

The Filing of Nominations for State Offices Ended at Midnight Wednesday.

The voters of Wisconsin will this year be provided with an official ballot of seven tickets and room for individual nominations. The seven tickets to be printed on the official ballot are:

Republican.
Democratic.
Prohibition.
National republican.
Social labor.
People's party.
Social democratic.

The committee for the three parties in this list will be well filled, carrying their nominations out from presidential electors to legislative and county officers. The national republican column will have only seven names in it, the six remaining candidates for state office as nominated at the opera-house meeting and ex-Governor Scofield for governor in place of the name of S. A. Cook.

Wednesday was the last day allowed by the law for the certification of nominations to the secretary of state and work has already been in progress for several days in the preparation of the official ballot. Late Wednesday evening not all the nominations had been filed and the office was kept open until midnight so that none might be kept out that might be sent in late. Several late papers were received before the office closed.

The 1,000 names necessary to place the populist electoral ticket in the field were secured and the ticket was filed with the secretary of state at a late hour.

WERE RE-MARRIED WITHOUT A PERMIT

Therefore Mrs. Robert Pollard May Have No Share in Her Late Husband's Estate

Ignorance of the law is becoming more and more costly these days. Mrs. Robert Pollard, living eight miles south of Janesville will be deprived of her portion of her former husband's estate because of it. Having secured a divorce in 1902, Mr. and Mrs. Pollard later went to Beloit and were re-married by Justice Charles Kendall. In the meantime, the legislature had enacted a law requiring all divorced parties to secure a special permit of the court before re-marrying. This permit the couple did not get. They were not then aware of the law. Mr. Pollard was their attention directed to it at their time during the life time of both parties. But last summer Mr. Pollard died and his estate was claimed by several heirs, among them his supposed widow. The attorney for the other heirs contended that she had no right in the estate as she was not legally married to Mr. Pollard the second time, and the contention was sustained. The property consisted in about sixty acres of land.

HUMANE SOCIETY MEETING TONIGHT

Bands of Mercy Will Furnish Program with Aid of High School Orchestra.

At the high school building, this evening will be held the annual meeting of the Humane society and Bands of Mercy and a large attendance is now expected. The high school orchestra will open the program at half-past seven with an overture followed by a chorus of the united Bands of Mercy. There will be numerous recitations interspersed with music furnished by the orchestra and different musical organizations.

One gold and two silver badges have been donated by Mrs. John Peters as prizes for the speaking and every one giving a recitation has so far put forth his or her best efforts to gain one of these rewards.

Remarks will be made by Rev. R. C. Denison on "Our Bands of Mercy" and Rev. Dean McGinnity will present the badges.

Work of the business nature will be transacted and the following order has been adopted: Report of Work of the Humane Society for the Past Year; Reports from Bands of Mercy; Reports of nominating committee and election of officers.

SAND-LIME BRICK COMING ARTICLE

Government Report on This Interesting Topic Appears Below

A wonderful industry which was to revolutionize the manufacture of brick in this country has in recent years been frequently described in the newspapers and trade journals. The claim has been made that brick suitable for all purposes could be made from sand with a small addition of lime, at a cost far less than that of ordinary brick. Time has not yet proved the truth of this statement; nevertheless, according to a paper written by Mr. V. S. Peppel and included in the annual report on "The Clay-Workings Industry," recently published by the United States Geological Survey, the sand-lime brick industry seems to have established itself and to have a promising future in certain sections of the United States. Where clay of good quality is not available, sand and lime are abundant, the manufacture of sand-lime brick may reasonably be expected to succeed. There are many such localities in Michigan, Wisconsin and other northwestern States, also in the South and Southwest.

There are in this country at present about fifty plants, with a total capacity of 1,000,000 bricks a day. The experience of these plants indicates that sand-lime brick can usually be manufactured at a cost below that of common clay brick. When, however, a sand-lime brick is desired equal to the fine clay front brick the cost of production is naturally beyond that of common clay brick. Sand-lime bricks have been in use long enough, both in this country and foreign countries, to prove that when properly made they have sufficient strength and sufficient water and weathering qualities to make them a safe building material.

The sand-lime brick of today is the natural outcome of the improvements made in the old mortar brick, which has been known for years. This mortar brick was at first never more than a molded mixture of lime and sand mortar which was allowed to harden in the air. About twenty-five or thirty years ago one Doctor Michaelis patented a process for the hardening of mixtures of lime and sand by steam under pressure, which is the foundation and fundamental principle on which the manufacture of sand-lime brick is based. The commercial development of the industry dates back only fifteen years in foreign countries and not more than four years in the United States. In 1896 Germany had only five factories for sand-lime brick, but now it has about 200, with an annual output of between 350,000,000 and 400,000,000. Early in 1901 a plant was built in Michigan city, Ind. In 1902 about 20 plants were in existence and 6,000,000 bricks were actually sold. Full and accurate data are not obtainable as to the actual output in 1903, but about 20,000,000 bricks have been reported as sold in that year. Many of the factories had just started and were not manufacturing to their full capacity during the year. Mr. Peppel's report contains a great many interesting details about the sand-lime brick, its history, and its manufacture. He discusses its properties such as porosity, crushing strength, resistance to weather and to fire, and its color. He describes its composition and dwells on the conditions essential to success in its manufacture. These include first, suitable raw materials—a comparatively pure sand, with the same preference in favor of a quartz sand, and a comparatively pure lime of either type, with the preference in favor of a high calcium lime—and secondly adequate machinery, which should consist of power and transmission, lime-preparing machinery, mixing apparatus, presses, hardening cylinders, conveyors, tracks and trucks, well-equipped sand-lime brick plant with a capacity of from 16,000 to 20,000 bricks in ten to twelve hours will cost, independent of site from $20,000 to $25,000.

Mr. Peppel closes his report with a list of the places in the United States and Canada where companies have been incorporated for the manufacture of sand-lime brick. Persons desirous of perusing Mr. Peppel's report may procure a copy by writing to the Director of the United States Geological Survey at Washington, D. C. for the pamphlet entitled "Statistics of the Clay Working Industries in the United States, 1903," with which it is published. Both reports will also be included in the forthcoming volume, "Mineral Resources, 1903," which the Survey has now in press.

cymoon" company last season won her so much favorable commendation, is entrusted with the rendering of three catchy songs and besides will interpolate a number of her famous imitations of famous actresses in their most famous parts. Twenty-three principals and forty chorus people are in the cast and no doubt will succeed in pleasing the lovers of musical comedy numbered among the theatre-goers of this city. Music dealers throughout the country say that their largest demands are for "What Color Eyes Do You Love Me?" "O'Reilly," "The Tale of the Tallese Frog," "Let Me Go Back," "As Belts My Rank and Station," "When Old Glory Floats From Everywhere," "Would You If You Were I," and the gratifying announcement that Mr. William Morris, the popular and brilliant young actor will play an engagement in "Who's Brown?" at Myers Grand on Friday evening is far the best criticism that can be offered for the production of Frank Wyatt's comedy. Too much cannot be said of the excellence of the work of Mr. Morris and his supporting company. "Who's Brown?" is a brilliant laughter rousing, perfectly constructed comedy. There are no lack of imperfections in plot, story, acting or acting. Without reservaed in its presentation is phenomenal. Such a quick action entertainment has certainly never been seen here. The applause for one striking feature is hardly started when another is presented. The piece fairly teems with new ideas and novelties. Taken in its entirety, it completely charms an audience by its innovations and the whirlwind pace at which one novelty after another is presented and hurled across the footlights. It is not too much to say that "The Billionaire" can be ranked as the greatest musical farce the American stage has yet presented. It ran for four months at Daly's theatre, in New York last season, playing to the largest attendance in the history of that house. It is the most laughable farce with not possible exception that has been seen on the local stage in years. Those who fail to see Mr. Morris in this wonderful play will miss an artistic masterpiece. There is nothing offensive, nothing that is not entirely natural in the whole play. So admirable an ensemble of theatrical and dramatic virtues were never before assembled in one presentation, and the single word "excellent" is the best and truest opinion that can be offered of "Who's Brown?"

ECZEMA A Holy Horror

The agonizing torture of this itching, burning disease has at last been conquered. We have secured the selling privilege in this city for a medicament that not only relieves the awful itching and burning sensation of this terrible disease, but roots it all out of the skin entirely, leaving a clear, smooth, healthy covering for the body. Conclusive facts indisputable in every particular, have been presented to us, proving beyond the per-adventure of a doubt, that Eczema, Eczema of Infants, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Tetter, Ring Worm, Scald Head, Pimples, Barber's Itch, Milk Crust, Dan-druff, Itching Piles, and all diseases of the skin and scalp can be quickly and permanently cleaned out of the skin by

The D. D. D. Remedy.

"About five years ago I noticed a slight eruption on my limbs, but in a very short time I was a sight to behold, from my head to my feet, and my nights were terrible. I was simply on fire. I tried a number of doctors here in this city, but with absolutely no results aside from causing the burning pain a little. A friend of mine who had been cured of a very bad case of Eczema by the D. D. D. Remedy advised me to try it, which I did, feeling good results from the first I have been using the D. D. D. Remedy for about three months, using in all, about fifteen bottles, and today I am a well man. I also had dandruff in its worst form, and found the D. D. D. Remedy to be a wonder in curing this disease."

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Oct. 21, 1864.—A Wholesome Competition.—We understand a wholesome rivalry exists between the different towns in this vicinity, as to which will furnish the largest delegation at the monster meeting to be held here next week. Clinton is making arrangements on a large scale and Beloit is coming up with a large delegation. Some men from Milton informed us today that the good people of this town mean to turn out immensely, men, women and children and give a day to their country. Similar reports reach us from other places while one or two are preparing on the sly to come and scoop all others on the largest delegation. We are glad to hear these notes of universal preparation and if the weather be propitious it will be one of the largest and most enthusiastic public meetings in Janesville, ever held in this part of the state.

Acknowledgments.—The ladies of the Aid Society of Janesville gratefully acknowledge the receipt of a package of hospital supplies from Johnston, containing the following articles: 4 pairs of drawers, 3 pillow cases, 7 napkins, old linen and cotton pairs of slippers, 1 sheet, 1 bed quilt, 3 packages of dried fruit, lint and bandages.

Democratic Candidate For Assembly.—We understand that A. D. Wickham, Esq., has been nominated as the Democratic candidate in this district.

H. S. Wooster has been nominated for assemblyman in the Clinton district. We have not yet received the proceedings of the convention.

Notice.—Rev. W. S. Blanchard will deliver an address in the court house room next Monday morning, on the State of the Country.

a visitor on Sunday. W. H. Bradley, wife and daughter Nellie of the town of Fulton were pleasant callers at Frank Boss on Sunday.

A few of the farmers are threshing this week. The potato crop is nearly dug, and although small in quantity is in good in quality.

JOHNSTOWN CENTER
Johnstown Center, Oct. 20.—A long life and a prosperous one to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Boynton.

Nearly forty couples attended the M. W. A. dance and all that were present reported a very enjoyable time.

Mrs. Ellen Chandler is visiting relatives in Illinois. Real estate agent J. T. Ward, with a company of land seekers started for Wausau last Monday.

Friends are being entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. McFarlane.

We are glad to learn of the improving condition of Mr. F. D. Hall. The farmers have been improving these fine days digging their potatoes and a bountiful crop is being realized.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Hall was interred in our village last Sunday afternoon.

other side of a roaring fire of sea-timber smiled Lord Derrington. He looked a grim and determined old gentleman as he bent his shaggy brows on his grandson.

George was very comfortable and also felt grateful for the kindness which his grandfather was showing him. At the same time he felt as though he were acting wrongly in hobnobbing with a man who persistently blackened his mother's memory.

"I suppose you wondered when you received my invitation," said Derrington.
"I did, sir. I wondered very much."
"And you felt inclined to refuse."

"I had almost made up my mind to."

"Why did you change your mind?"
George pondered and looked again at his grandfather. "Well, sir," said he, after a pause, "I thought that after a dinner we might come to understand each other better, and I am anxious for peace."

"And for recognition of your birth," said Derrington. "Naturally. The one included the other."

"Does that mean you will fight till you get what you want?"

"Yes," said George firmly and then closed his lips with a firm determination to give battle if necessary. At the same time he felt it was rather awkward after eating Derrington's food. A sudden impulse made him rise.

"What's the matter now?" asked Derrington, not moving.

"Well, sir," burst out Brendon, "I have a feeling that we are going to quarrel, and in your own house, and after that very excellent dinner I don't want to behave rudely. It will be better to postpone this talk."

"Not a bit of it," said Derrington quietly. "We are relatives, and quarrels between relatives do not count. Sit down. I have something important to say to you."

George sat down and prepared for the worst. "We'll leave the question of your birth alone for the present," said the elder in a hard tone. "At this moment I wish to talk of Mrs. Jersey's death, also about your father's death."

"What has that to do with this, sir?"
"I believe the one is connected with the other."

George remembered what Bawdsey had said. "I've heard that remark before," he observed.

"Of course. That detective I employed to watch you made it."

"He did. I think you trust that man too much, sir," said Brendon after a pause.

"Do you? I thought he was a friend of yours?"

"Oh—George shrugged his shoulders. "I saved his life, but that does not constitute friendship. I don't think Bawdsey is worthy of your confidence."

"I know he isn't. But you see I can't help myself."

George looked up quickly. "Blackmail?"

"Something of that sort. I intend to trust my own flesh and blood—that is,
I intend to tell you all I know connected with the Jersey case and ask you to help me to get the better of Bawdsey."

"Assuredly, sir," said Derrington.
"I have not behaved well, George."

"That's true, enough, sir," said
George, who was not going to be weak,
"but you can make amends by acknowledging that my mother was an honest woman."

"I believe she was, George, for none but an honest woman could have borne a son like you. But, you see, I know no more than you do where the marriage took place."

"Do you acknowledge that there was a marriage?" said George, starting to rise.

his feet. Derrington rose also, and the tall men faced one another.

"My boy," said he, "I am sure there was a marriage. I am sure that you are my legitimate heir, and, by heavens, I intend to acknowledge you as such before the week's out."

Brendon was so moved by this sudden recognition of all he longed for that a sudden weakness seized him;
and he sat down, covering his face with his hand. Derrington thought the young man did so to conceal his tears, but in reality George was putting up a short thanksgiving for this wonderful and bloodless victory. His grandfather again touched his shoulder. "My boy," he said again, and his voice was broken with emotion. "I have behaved badly. I ask your pardon."

George put out his hand blindly and grasped that of his grandfather. When it was once in the old man's grip he raised his grandson with a jerk and made him look him in the face. "You forgive me?" he asked.

"With all my heart and soul," said Brendon quietly, and after another handshake they resumed their seats.

"My boy, I have behaved badly,"
said Derrington, with a contented sigh.

"If my influence can help you, yes," Derrington paused and shook his head.
"But there is a lioness in the path, George."

"Mrs. Ward?"

"Exactly. She will move heaven and earth to prevent the marriage."

George looked puzzled. "I see no reason why she should oppose it if I am acknowledged as your heir."

"Nor do I. I thought myself that it was simply the money she wanted, and if you were the son-in-law she would not get her claws on the gold.
But there is more in it than that. She seeks revenge."

"On me? I have never harmed her!"

"It's a vicarious revenge. I believe that woman loved your father, George, and that he loved her. That is why she wants to visit his sin—as with a vindictive spirit she may regard it—on you."

"Did Mrs. Ward know my father, sir?" asked George quickly.

"Yes. She met him at San Remo."
"Then she knew he was murdered?"

"Of course. I saw Mrs. Ward the other day, George. She came here to force me to harm you and to consent to Walter marrying Dorothy."

"Oh! You never agreed to that?"

"I have answered her challenge by asking you to dinner and will acknowledge you my heir. Mrs. Ward will then try to make mischief."

"Can she do so?"

"Yes. She knows that I was in Mrs.
Jersey's house on that night."

"And you were, sir?"

"Derrington made a most unexpected reply. "No, I was not."

CHAPTER XVII.
GEORGE WAS RATHER PUZZLED TO reconcile the apparent contradiction in Derrington's speech.

The old gentleman saw his bewilderment, and before the young man could speak he anticipated his question.

"You are perplexed," he said quietly.
"I thought you would be. To explain myself clearly it will be better to tell you the whole story from the beginning."

"What story?"

"The story of your mother's marriage and of my quarrel with your father. Do not be afraid. I shall say nothing to hurt your pride. But I fear Percy was not overburdened with brains. He was gay and thoughtless and thriftless. Your talents, George, come from your mother. She must have been a remarkable woman."

"However, to continue," pursued Derrington, pushing away his empty cup.
"Percy saw Miss Lockwood, he fell in love with her, and finally he eloped. I wrote him a letter saying he was to return or I would never see him again.
He declined to return and remained on the continent with his wife. I never did see him again," added Derrington quietly, "for three years later he was murdered at San Remo."

"In his letter to you did my father say he was married?"

"He did, but at the time, as he did not say where the marriage was celebrated, I thought he mentioned it out of ostentation."

George colored. "I don't see why you should have so misjudged my mother," he said.

The Exacting and Dressy Young Man

Will nowhere else find a more complete range of up-to-the-minute styles so representative of the brains and hands of America's most distinguished shoe builders as are now shown at this store. Indeed, the ease with which they sell and the every day increasing patronage of this store is ample evidence that our efforts as "value givers" are recognized by the "knowing ones."

Have you seen that new Gun Metal Colt in these new lasts we are selling so many of? This is a dull leather with the great virtue of lots of wear. The price 3.50

Patent Colt Dress Shoes in every conceivable last and pattern. We are showing a special adaptation of our own at a price less 2.98 than regular. Bench Welted, something good, all sizes.....

The New Boston, a Patent Colt, Velour or Vici, is the swell narrow drop toe with military heel—a swagger style, welt soles—3.50 none any better.....

The Togo Patent Colt Button, a gem in newness and graceful outline. Dull tops and large buttons to match. Military heel. This you must see. No better values on earth today. The price 4.00 is.....

HANAN SHOES

The greatest benefaction for the foot of living man. This is the store where you'll find them in appealing winter styles, on fifteen different lasts. The pair 5.00

Our Store is but a little over a year old. We started out with the idea of snappy and reliable foot styles at popular prices, meeting almost with instant success. We have kept adding new lines until today our stock is one of the most comprehensive, exclusive, up to date shoe stocks in Rock County.

MYERS' GRAND TO-NIGHT

William Morris —IN— "Whos Brown?"

The present comedy success of New York and London, with an all-star cast direct from New York City.

WHAT LAST MONDAY'S MILWAUKEE SENTINEL SAYS:

"A clever actor supported by an excellent company at the Davidson.

"William Morris, who has occupied a conspicuous position in the dramatic world for several years, appeared last evening supported by a strong company in the farce comedy, "Who's Brown?" Five curtain calls, with demand for a speech, after the second act manifested the enthusiasm of an audience that filled the Davidson.

"Mr. Morris, company and vehicle fulfilled all reasonable requirements and is one of the best attractions that has appeared at the Davidson this season."
